

Revera Employees Celebrate Memories by Raising $177,000 for Alzheimer's Disease Education and Research

Fifth annual fundraising campaign brings total raised to nearly $800,000 to date

MISSISSAUGA, Canada, February 2, 2017 – For the fifth straight year, employees at Revera, a leading owner, operator and investor in the senior living sector, rallied around the company's Celebrating Memories annual national fundraising campaign, raising more than $177,000 in support of the Alzheimer Society of Canada in 2016. These funds bring the five-year total, raised primarily through Celebrating Memories events at Revera's retirement communities and long term care homes across Canada, to nearly $800,000, with funds directed to Alzheimer's disease education and research, as well as programs and services.

Part of the funds raised in 2016 also supported Revera Scholar, Stephanie Chamberlain, an Alzheimer Society of Canada Doctoral Fellow at the University of Alberta and her groundbreaking research on social isolation and its impact on the care of vulnerable seniors living with dementia.

"Every day, the people we serve who are impacted by Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementias inspire us to support this important cause," said Thomas G. Wellner, President and Chief Executive Officer of Revera Inc. "We are proud to have a strong relationship with the Alzheimer Society of Canada, which works tirelessly to support those impacted and their families, and to drive advances through leading-edge research."

According to the Alzheimer Society of Canada, 564,000 Canadians are living with dementia today, and that number will increase to 937,000 in 15 years. Each year, 25,000 people are diagnosed with dementia, and for every person diagnosed, there are many more family members and friends that provide direct care.

"Celebrating Memories is a wonderful community initiative that makes a difference to so many Canadians living with dementia, their caregivers and families. We are grateful for Revera's on-going commitment in helping to advance critical research and support programs and services available at Alzheimer Societies across Canada," says Debbie Benczkowski, Chief Operating Officer at the Alzheimer Society of Canada.

The Celebrating Memories fundraising drive is integral to Revera's community involvement program, Revera Giving. Every contribution the company makes – from shining a light on and reducing ageism, to supporting the work of key community partners, or recognizing employee volunteerism - is an expression of the company's commitment to honouring the ageless spirit of people and to helping build stronger communities.
